17.0 HOT TOPICS:

- Over the last year we have seen a strong and steady growth in use of virtual classrooms even in a period (the first half of 2021) where COVID cases were low in Australia and universities were encouraging staff and students back onto campus for learning and teaching. Numbers of both small and large classes have increased in our virtual classroom software, as have recordings with a Terabyte of content being added in the first half of this year. For the last 10 years, as long as efficient lecture recording and convenient access has been around, we have seen a decline in lecture attendance, usually after the first 1-3 weeks, as students catch up on lectures via the recording when it suits them. This has been a point of great concern and frustration for teachers who sometimes are teaching to a largely empty room.Why, even in a COVID normal state with low cases and a push for on campus delivery did the number of virtual classes grow in number and size? Are students attending virtual classes more than they would physical lectures? -Shane Nuessler University of Canberra

- Affordances and Risks of the Merger of Ouriginal and Turnitin A position paper from the Australasian Council on Open, Distance and eLearning- Michael Sankey

    Future Workshop topics: Next Gen Digital environment
    Dominance of Microsoft and Google.
